

PhD Child & Family Studies Concentration

The Ph.D. Child and Family Studies (CFS) concentration is a minimum of 15 hours of designated CFS research and elective courses, in lieu of 12 hours of research cognate and interdisciplinary electives currently required of the Ph.D. in Social Work degree. The CFS concentration courses include: Advanced Studies in Family Science, Advanced Studies in Child Development, Theories of Child Development, Theories in Family Science, Research Methodology in Child and Family Studies. Successful completion of the CFS concentration requires fulfillment of all requirements of doctoral students in Social Work.